

Your interest in this Maintenance Plan is a great step toward maintaining your laboratory facility for efficiency and proper operation of its systems.

Biocontainment laboratories are used by institutions researching pathogenic organisms. Guidelines to design, construct, and maintain these laboratories are listed in publications such as, Biosafety in Microbiological and Biomedical Laboratories (BMBL), National Institute of Health (NIH), Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Laboratory Biosafety Guidelines (LBG), and World Health Organization (WHO).

We offer a Maintenance Plan which includes recommended routine preventive maintenance schedules to be performed by the owner using his own qualified maintenance personnel or preferred qualified contractor, and CERTEK's annual maintenance routine implementing several accountability measures. The intent of these measures through the CERTEK maintenance services are to benefit the owner in his investment, and to help maintain safety of laboratory personnel and that of the community.
